2006 Chapter 2: The Chemical Level of Organization

2.1 Homeostasis and Feedback

- Homeostasis: maintenance of a stable internal environment
- Feedback: process by which a system responds to a change in its internal environment
- Negative feedback: most common type of feedback
- Positive feedback: amplifies a response

Chemical Level of Organization

- Chemical level: study of the chemical and physical properties of matter
- Matter: anything that has mass and occupies space
- Matter: composed of atoms and molecules
- Matter: composed of elements and compounds
- Matter: composed of atoms and molecules
- Matter: composed of atoms and molecules
- Matter: composed of atoms and molecules
- Matter: composed of atoms and molecules

Atomic Structure

- Atoms: smallest unit of matter that cannot be created or destroyed
- Atoms: composed of protons, neutrons, and electrons
- Atoms: composed of protons, neutrons, and electrons
- Atoms: composed of protons, neutrons, and electrons
- Atoms: composed of protons, neutrons, and electrons
- Atoms: composed of protons, neutrons, and electrons
- Atoms: composed of protons, neutrons, and electrons
- Atoms: composed of protons, neutrons, and electrons

Molecular Structure

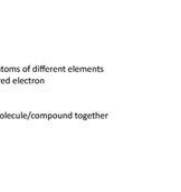

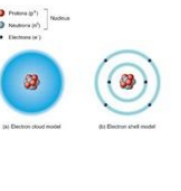

- Molecules: smallest unit of matter that can exist independently
- Molecules: composed of two or more atoms
- Molecules: composed of two or more atoms
- Molecules: composed of two or more atoms
- Molecules: composed of two or more atoms
- Molecules: composed of two or more atoms
- Molecules: composed of two or more atoms
- Molecules: composed of two or more atoms

Chemical Bonds

- Chemical bonds: forces that hold atoms together in a molecule
- Chemical bonds: forces that hold atoms together in a molecule
- Chemical bonds: forces that hold atoms together in a molecule
- Chemical bonds: forces that hold atoms together in a molecule
- Chemical bonds: forces that hold atoms together in a molecule
- Chemical bonds: forces that hold atoms together in a molecule
- Chemical bonds: forces that hold atoms together in a molecule
- Chemical bonds: forces that hold atoms together in a molecule

2.2 Chemical Reactions

- Chemical reactions: processes by which matter is transformed
- Chemical reactions: processes by which matter is transformed
- Chemical reactions: processes by which matter is transformed
- Chemical reactions: processes by which matter is transformed
- Chemical reactions: processes by which matter is transformed
- Chemical reactions: processes by which matter is transformed
- Chemical reactions: processes by which matter is transformed
- Chemical reactions: processes by which matter is transformed
